U. S. AND JAPAN PLAN PARLEY ON MOOTED POINTS

Negotiations for Settlement of Questions Pending Conducted by Hughes and Shidehara

YAP, IMMIGRATION, LAND LAW, SHANTUNG TO BE DISCUSSED

Settlement of Yap Question Taken from Hands of League of Nations

WASHINGTON, D. C.—By The Associated Press.—Direct negotiations have been begun between the United States and Japan for the settlement of the questions pending between them.

These include the island of Yap, the immigration question, the alien land question, and the return of Shantung to China by Japan.

The negotiations are being conducted by the Japanese ambassador and Secretary Hughes. The sentiment of the Shantung question would make unnecessary the consideration of this question by the league of nations.

Taken from League's Hands

It had been expected that the Yap issue would be left to the adjustment by the league council which is to meet Thursday in Geneva. The French government, in answer to the American protest against the award of the mandate for the island to Japan, said it would bring the subject before the council. It is understood that the basis for settlement in the negotiation between Ambassador Shidehara and Secretary Hughes will be the internationalization of the cable privileges on the island.

The proposal is to settle the immigration issue on the basis of the complete stoppage of all Japanese coolie immigration, with proper protection for Japanese property rights already acquired in the United States.

Japan's promise to return Shantung to China, it is said, is to be executed as soon as practicable and without reference of the question to any European tribunal.

Japan Discusses

TOKIO.—By The Associated Press.—Renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance and the question of control over the island of Yap were discussed at Wednesday's meeting of the diplomatic advisory council, it was declared by local newspapers. Viscount Uchida, foreign minister, explained recent developments on these two subjects, the newspapers declared, although no official announcement was made.

Meanwhile the leading newspapers speculate at some length on the proposed renewal of the alliance with England, some of them seeking to establish a connection between the proposed renewal and the problem of curtailment of armaments. Many of the newspapers hold the opinion that the renewed form of the alliance must be offensive to America.

HARNESS GRAFT SCANDAL MAY BRING ARMY OFFICERS TO TRIAL SAYS DAUGHERTY

BISHOP SCHWEBACH'S WILL FILED; LEAVES ESTATE OF $25,000

Archbishop Messmer Named as Beneficiary; Property to Go to Charitable Institutions

INSTRUMENT WAS DRAWN BY PRELATE HIMSELF IN 1910

"Relatives Otherwise Provided for" Bishop Wrote in Testament

TED will of Bishop James Schwebach, disposing of an estate valued at approximately $25,000, was filed in probate court today.

The will was drawn by the bishop himself on Feb 24, 1910. It was written in long hand on both sides of a single sheet of legal sized paper. The witnesses were the Rev. John N. Rapp, who was the bishop's secretary and the Rt. Rev. A. Ph. Kramer, vicar general of the La Crosse diocese.

Archbishop Sebastian Gebhard Messmer of Milwaukee is named as executor. The bishop stated in his will that his relatives "have otherwise been provided for." The petition to have the will probated was made by A. H. Schubert, attorney for the archbishop who is now in Europe.

Bishops of the Catholic church usually make another bishop their beneficiary under the terms of their wills and private instructions to their beneficiaries on the disposition of their property.

It is understood that all of the estate of Bishop Schwebach will ultimately go to charitable institutions in the La Crosse diocese.

CHIEF OF LEATHER PURCHASES IN WAR NAMED IN CHARGES

Harness Corporation Formed by Army Officers in Charge of Buying

WERE GIVEN CONTRACT FOR SELLING SURPLUS

Minimum Price of $14.60 on Harness Costing up to $226 a Set

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Criminal proceedings against a number of former army officers may follow action of President Harding in cancelling war department contracts with the United States Harness company of Ransom, W. Va., for the disposal of surplus harness, it was said Wednesday night at the department of justice.

Officers in Company

The contract with the United States Harness company was entered into on September 3, 1920, by E. C. Morse, director of sales of the war department, and was approved by Secretary of War Baker. The principal officers of the company are Colonel George B. Goetz, Major J. C. Byron, Captain Henry W. Benke and Captain Azel F. Cochrane, all of whom served during the war as emergency officers.

Major Joseph C. Byron, a tanner of Williamsport, Pa., during the entire period of the war, had virtual charge of fixing prices on all leather goods purchased by the war department.

George B. Goetz was a member of a firm of harness makers of Ransom, W. Va. Throughout the war he had charge of the purchase of leather materials for the army, being assisted by Captain Cochran.

At the suggestion of Goetz, Henry W. Benke, another harness manufacturer, was brought into the war department and commissioned captain.

Control All Buying

Benke worked under Col. Goetz, being assigned the duty of inspecting all leather purchased for use in the army. Thus it is charged, absolute control of price fixing, purchase and inspection of leather goods requested for the army was centered in the hands of Byron, Goetz, Benke and Cochran throughout the war. It was testified by officers connected with the purchasing division of the army that purchases were so excessive as to be beyond all reason and that if all the leather and leather goods that were authorized had been purchased all the hides of the country would have been taken up and 300,000 more. The civilian population in 1918 was allowed only 80 per cent of the country's production of leather for that year.

Among the purchases were 80,000 sets of "H. T. G." harness at

STEMMERS AT LORILLARD CO. BACK AT WORK

Strike that Began Tuesday Morning Ends With 292 Employes Returning this Morning

DIFFICULTY OVER TOBACCO CONDITION FINALLY ADJUSTED

Proposition of Management Unanimously Accepted at Union Hall Meeting

THE tobacco stemmers, 292 of them employed by the P. Lorillard company, who went on strike at 10 a. m. Tuesday were back at work when the whistle blew this morning.

After two meetings of the strikers in Union hall, the difficulties were patched up and under the guiding hand of Frank Wells, acting organizer for the Trades and Labor Council, a committee was appointed to confer with the manager, Robert Claiborne. After an hour's conference the committee returned Wednesday afternoon to the strikers who had reassembled in Union hall and announced the result of the meeting.

It was unanimously voted to accept the offer of Mr. Claiborne, namely that everybody return to work Wednesday; that the tobacco to be stemmed should 30 percent poor and 70 per cent good, with the understanding that within a month the proportion of poor tobacco would be cut to 15 per cent; that the company would provide wet sacks to cover the tobacco while the stemmers were working on it and that the company would agree to meet with a committee of the stemmers. It was also agreed that the factory doors would not open before 6:30 a. m.

EXEMPT INSURANCE FROM INHERITANCE TAX SENATE PLAN

MADISON, Wis.—Insurance up to $50,000 will be exempt from inheritance tax, if the assembly concurs in a senate amendment attached to the Arnold bill Thursday. Under the present statute, being contested in the supreme court, all insurance is taxable.

Attempt to amend the inheritance tax bill, doubling present rates, so that estates up to $50,000 left to widows would be left untaxed, was killed, 21 to 11. The exemption now carried by the bill is $25,000. The measure was passed and sent to the assembly for consurrence in the insurance amendment.

DRY LEADERS SEEK EARLY ACTION ON ANTI-BEER BILL

WASHINGTON.—House prohibition leaders have started a drive for early action on the Volstead anti-beer bill before Commissioner Haynes could make effective regulations providing for the sale of beer to the sick. Word that the new order would not be held up long prompted the move.

Mr. Volstead's appeal for immediate consideration has not been acted on by the rules committee. He said there was no telling when the bill could be passed without a special rule, adding "But I am sure we will get the rule."

STATE SECRETARY TO REGULATE WISCONSIN DETECTIVE AGENCIES

MADISON, Wis.—Regulation of detective agencies will be placed directly in the hands of the secretary of state instead of fire and police commissioners of cities, through action in reconsideration of the Pierson Detective agency bill, killed on Tuesday.

Private detective companies fought for the change on the ground that it would allow them more freedom of action.

MARKET BILL FATE IN BALANCE

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE IN ATTACK UPON THE BLAINE "DRY" BILL

Without Home Brew Amendment Measure is Weaker than Present Law is Claim

HOME BREWING FORBIDDEN BY PREVIOUS LAW SAYS STATEMENT

Nothing to Prevent Operation of Still in Every Home

MADISON, Wis.—The new Blaine dry enforcement bill was attacked by the Anti-Saloon league Thursday in an official statement, which declares that "without the Olson amendment it is weaker than the present Mulberger law," and may serve "as a camouflage under which liquor is made and sold."

Governor Blaine on Monday attacked the Olson amendment prohibiting manufacture of home brew, as "intolerable espionage on the home, which fritters away public money to prosecute good citizens who have no wrongful intent." He called on the assembly to kill the amendment when it is voted on Friday, as a result of hasty committee action.

"Two little words are the cause of all the trouble," the Anti-Saloon league says. "The Volstead act forbids the manufacture, the Mulberger law forbids the manufacture, this bill simply forbids the 'manufacture for sale' of moonshine liquor."

"The Olson amendment removed the two words 'for sale,' thus correcting the mistake. With these two words removed the bill corresponds to the Volstead act, and the present Mulberger law, and complies with the contention advanced by the governor that we should agree with the federal law and the people's referendum verdict.

"Chapter 66 of the Wisconsin statutes for two generations has prohibited home made moonshine. Surely no progressive is going to back up for two generations, especially when his act would aid those who are trying to evade the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

"Without the Olson amendment there is nothing in the bill to prevent a home still in every home and the manufacture of moonshine for the use of the family and 'guests.' Experience proves that home-made liquor for family and guests becomes the camouflage under which liquor is made and sold."

DRY BILL REPORTED OUT FOR PASSAGE BY ASSEMBLY THURSDAY

Enforcement Measure Expected to be Laid Over Until Next Week

MADISON, Wis.—Report on the governor's prohibition enforcement bill was made to the assembly Thursday morning by the finance committee, with recommendation for passage as it came from the senate. The $60,000 appropriation is retained in the measure.

Bulletin of the proposal will be made for Saturday's calendar, with the probability that it will be laid over until next week in order that a full attendance may be represented. A number of members leaving this week are being paired on the dry bill.

Vote on the enforcement measure brings up the probability of a call of the house, since not more than a bare quorum will be on hand during the voting. Big appropriation measures require a representation of at least 60 of the 100 members in the assembly.

WOMAN CONFESSES TO THEFT WHICH CAUSED SLAYING

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Mystery surrounding the shooting of Joseph J. Wamser by Thomas Foran, 5413 Galena street, for alleged attempted robbery and "peeping" last Saturday night, was cleared up Wednesday when Mrs. Foran is alleged to have confessed to District Attorney W. C. Zabel that she had taken the money herself and then told her husband it had been stolen, the prosecuting attorney announced.

Foran, who fired the shots which killed Wamser, will be accused of manslaughter and his wife with accessory of the slaying.

PUBLIC BATH HOUSE OPENED OFFICIALLY WEDNESDAY MORNING

Oh—Skinnay, c'mon over.

The public bath house was officially opened on Wednesday, June 15. La Crosse "water-rats" may now make use of the locker rooms at the public bath and it is expected that hundreds will be seen on the beach during the present hot weather.

CAPITAL OVER-RUN WITH HUNDREDS OF STATE LOBBYISTS

MADISON, Wis. — Lobbyists have descended in full force upon the legislature during the closing days of the session, crowding the corridors and button holing members of both houses at every turn. Hundreds have registered with the secretary of state. "I have never seen it quite so bad as this spring," A. L. Best, veteran assemblyman from Dunn county, declared. "It's gotten so I can hardly get time to read my bills, so many of these outsiders pester me. The rules of the legislature distinctly forbid this sort of thing."

The particular victims of the lobbyists are those members who have not taken a decided stand upon the major questions before the legislature, old hands say. The man who gets a reputation for indecision is harried and harassed until the final vote is taken upon closely contested measures. Presiding officers have been forced to send the sergeants in search of absent members repeatedly after they had been called from their seats by lobbyists, so that a roll might be taken upon financial measures.

INJURIES REPORTED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS EARLY ON THURSDAY

Three Cars in Smash-up on State Road About Three O'clock Thursday Morning

HARRY BAIRD SUFFERS CUTS ABOUT BODY AND HANDS

Occupants of Willis-Knight Believed Slightly Injured

TWO auto accidents in which three cars were damaged to considerable extent, involving also injury to occupants of the cars, occured on the State road immediately outside of the city limits about 1:30 o'clock Thursday morning, according to a report at Central police station and sheriff's office today.

Harry Baird, driver of a Ford, received a gash on the side of his body and in addition was cut about his hands as a result of the accident, according to a report received here. Names of occupants of a Willis-Knight car, the license number of which was granted to George D. Sprain, West Salem, were not learned. Oscar Seynestby, Cashton, alleged to have run into the Ford, following the first accident, is being held at Central station.

One Car Parked?

While there were no eye-witnesses to the accident, the police solution of the affair is that the Willis-Knight at the time of the accident was parked along the road, and was struck from the rear by the Ford, said to have been driven by Harry Baird.

The police department Thursday based this conclusion upon the fact that the Willis-Knight was damaged in the rear, while the Ford was battered up in front. The Willis-Knight was driven under its own power to Cliffwood Inn and parked there.

Cars Abandoned

Questioned regarding his connection with the affair, Seynestby, Thursday declared that the Ford remained on the road after it was abandoned by the driver and that he struck it because there were no lights in the rear. According to the police, the Ford was sent into a ditch and when found Thursday, was overturned on one side. Seynestby crawled into the back seat of his car, a Reo, and went to sleep for the rest of the night, it was said. He was reported by the police to have been drinking. There was no one around, he said, when he struck the Ford.

According to Sheriff Miller, who was on the scene a few minutes after the first accident, he passed the Seynestby car when he with the occupants of the other cars were coming back to town, which was eastbound. Miller says Seynestby's car did not have any lights on the left side of his car. The Ford had been hauled off the road and was on the north side of the pike, clear of the macadam paving, according to the sheriff.

Others Believed Injured

That occupants of the Willis-Knight were injured in the accident was supported by the fact that officers found blood about the cushions of the car. Articles of women's wearing apparel were also found in the car the police said. An investigation is being made by the police.

ANNUAL MEETING TONIGHT

The annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held at 7:30 tonight. All of the bureaus will elect directors.

LOWER HOUSE WON'T ACCEPT SENATE CHANGE

Assembly Refuses to Concur in Amendments to Restrict Powers of New Marketing Department

PLACE RESPONSIBILITY FOR BILL'S DEATH ON SENATE

Conference Committee Will Attempt to Work Out Compromise on Bill

MADISON, Wis — The assembly Thursday refused to concur in senate amendments to the administration marketing bill restricting its powers and striking out trade commission features. Conference committee of both houses will now be selected to work out a compromise on the important measure.

Vote on the first Werden amendment striking out trade commission feature of the bill and restricting its scope to regulation of food products, was 53 to 39 for non-concurrence.

On the second Werden amendment giving the governor, attorney general and commissioner of agriculture reviewing power over decisions of the marketing commissioner involving trade practices, the vote stood, 59 to 26 for nonconcurrence.

Farmer members who carried the measure through two legislative battles in the assembly without losing a point, are unwilling to submit to any amendments which would restrict the power of the marketing department over business as well as over the farming industry.

Led by Assemblyman William Olson, and backed by the solid administration forces, they decisively overrode the opposition members of the lower house. It is not expected that farmer members will agree to any important concessions to the senate stand, forcing responsibility for death of the measure on the upper house, if agreement cannot be made.

Will Drive Out Industry?

Opposition was centered on the trade commission features of the proposal which, it was stated on the floor, would drive business out of the state and would place complete control of industry in the hands of a single commissioner.

Attempt may be made to divorce the trade commission features from the bill and include them in a separate measure.

Amended in Senate

MADISON, Wis.—With its trade commission features eliminated, the administration marketing bill was passed unopposed in the senate last Wednesday. The measure now goes to the assembly for concurrence in two upper house amendments.

A fight was waged on the floor around the Werden amendment restricting the scope of the bill to regulation of the marketing of food products. Led by Senator Oscar Olson, the farmer representatives attacked the proposed change as an unjust discrimination against the agricultural interests but lost when a move to indefinitely postpone was killed, 18 to 13.

Further restriction was placed around the newly created department, when a second Werden amendment, calling for review of the decisions of the commissioner of markets with regard to unfair trade practices by the governor, attorney general and commission of agriculture was adopted. Attempt to block acceptance of this alteration was defeated, 18 to 13.

Farmer members of the assembly are expected to fight the senate changes on the ground that they establish an unjust discrimination. The opinion generally expressed is that the measure will finally be enacted into law in the form it comes from the senate.

The bill establishes a new department of markets directed by a commissioner of markets. He has power of regulation and supervision of all dealers in food products, with authority to prosecute for unfair practices in any phase of handling these products. Regulation of co-operative associations and of the marketing of farm products in general is given to the new department.

In the form the bill came from the assembly, authority of the commissioner was extended over unfair practices in all business. He possessed sweeping powers of investigation and regulation, such as is reposed in no other agency in the country with the probable exception of federal trade commission.

An appropriation of $116,000 annually is given the new department to carry out its work. Fees for inspection service are returned to the department as a revolving fund, and are not included in the appropriation.

Roll call on the acceptance of the restricting amendment follows:

For indefinite postponement—Anderson, Arnold, Boyer, Bilgrien, Dennhardt, Hirsch, Kleist, Moran, Olson,

HEALTH DEPARTMENT MAKES TWO SURVEYS OF MILK SOLD HERE

Cream Found to Test as High as 27%; Milk Samples Reach 5.2%

Making two complete milk surveys and tests in the city since the first of the year, the city health department reports that in some instances cream testing as high as twenty-six and twenty-seven percent was found. Several milk samples tested by the department were found to be as high as 5.2 percent. However, these tests were found only in three different dairys supplying milk and two dairies supplying cream. Only in three instances was cream found below standard. Milk was found below in eight instances; three of those samples were submitted and were therefore not official. Letters of warning were sent to dealers and producers where milk showed unclean methods of handling determined by the sediment test. Where supply does not improve a harsher means will be employed to remedy the violation, revoking of license or shutting off supply until producers employ cleanly methods of milking, better care of fed babies, also unprofitable as same of the trouble.

A number of producers still have the old idea that by straining milk through a fine mesh with cloth covering that milk is then clean and wholesome. This is wrong as bacteria will easily pass through where milk or water passes so that any foreign matter like a small partical of manure may contain many thousand of injurious organisms that no known method will remove, thus making the milk unsafe for infants and bottle fed babies also unprofitally as same will sour sooner than clean milk.

Cream or milk produced clean and cooled properly removing the animal heat and then keeping same cool until ready to be used is the only safe food for infants. This department is ready at all times to give citizens information in regard to their supply as we keep in touch with the producer. The Board of Health advise people with infants or bottle fed babies to try to secure some dairyman who has his own herd only, that the department knows his dairy and methods are sanitary where the milk is bottled on his place in a cleanly manner and cooled and kept cool until used. Everytime milk is transferred from one recepticle to another giving it a chance to warm up ever so little gives the bacteria a better chance to develop and lessens the chance for baby to remain free from colic and bowel trouble, better have good milk than the doctor.

There are few families in the city that are using canned or what is called filled milk. Any mother that feeds this product to her child cannot expect her child to grow and be healthy. She should only expect ill health, a lowering of vitality as cotton seed oil can never supply growth producing constituents that is found in butter fat. You will find filled milk labeled cotton seed oil and the Board of Health wishes to advise mothers with babies and growing children not to use this instead of fresh milk.

RALPH TOLAND WILL SING HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Much interest is being displayed in the program to be sung by Ralph Toland, baritone, formerly of La Crosse, in his recital at the La Crosse theater Friday night.

Musical critics in the east who have heard him render the program, claim that it is a very severe test for any baritone in range, volume and technical execution; in fact it is the type of program rarely attempted except by the most seasoned artists. That Mr. Toland handles it capably is evident from the volumes of praise showered on him by the foremost eastern critics.

Mr. Toland's two-year period of instruction under famous New York teachers has rounded out his naturally beautiful voice, and those who attend his recital Friday night will be fully repaid.

An unusual feature of the recital will be a ten-minute "lecture" preceding the concert briefly explaining the program, and a short introduction to each number.

ALL DENTAL WORK PAINLESS TO YOU

DR. WATTERSON

The Art Exhibit At The Chamber of Commerce

BY D. O. COATE

THEY are here and in place on the walls of the Chamber of Commerce

Have you seen them? There are fifteen in all, and a fine showing they make, too. Six of them may be definitely called figure pictures; three, marines; four, landscapes; and two, genre paintings. Hardly could a greater range of handling, style, technique, and subject be shown in a collection no greater in number.

* * * *

The members of the Art association especially will wish to take advantage of this exhibit because of the variety of themes and style of painting here represented. Also, these are the very artists whose works the visitor sees at the National Academy of Design and at the Metropolitan Museum in New York city and at the National Gallery in Washington.

* * * *

La Crosse has never before had the opportunity to see an original Blakelock, the work of that master whose life was such a tragedy. Nor has the Art association before had any pictures from Cecelia Beaux, whose figure painting and portraits stand next to the work of Sargeant. She is without doubt America's foremost woman portrait painter. This exhibit also furnishes us our first opportunity to see the work of Childe Hassam, Richard Miller, Willard Metcalf, Frederick Waugh, Irving Wiles, the late John W. Alexander and Robert Reid.

Dwight Tryon, Paul Dougherty, Horatio Walker, J. Alden Weir and Mary Cassatt has each had a canvas here at an exhibit four or five years ago. But in each case but one we have a different picture from these great masters.

* * * *

As to style of painting, we could hardly have a more instructively illuminating exhibit. In Blakelock we see the low-toned, dark, brown canvas of the artists of a century ago, the same style which the actor, Joe Jefferson, used. (By the way, are you aware of the fact that an original Jefferson is owned in La Crosse and hangs in the Stoddard hotel? It is certain that his artistic talent would have made Jefferson as famous as did his histrionic, had the former been given the lead instead of the latter—so lavish are the gods with their gifts to certain favored individuals like Francis Hopkinson Smith and Michael Angelo, e. g.—and so parsimonious towards most of us, to whom they will not grant even one).

From the old style technique of the Blakelock to the brilliant work in broken color of Childe Hassam, Richard E. Miller and Willard Metcalf runs the full gamut of a century of painting. It may be long before we shall again have brought together in one exhibit these extremes. Let us realize our advantage for general information in this line.

Here too we have the lovely, smooth, refined parlor-picture style in Tryon's landscape, "November"—"a thing of beauty" in every respect.

* * * *

The power of the sea is told to us in majestic eloquence by the marines of Dougherty and Waughh, while Hassam tells us of its endless stretch and eternity.

Metcalf's "Family of Birches" is a beautiful canvas that glints and snaps with life and shows at the same time two or three most interesting points in the painter's technique—painting by flecks or points and dabs, instead of brush strokes; how much life can be imparted by the unpainted canvas itself, and, third, how significant are the strokes of a master—how comparatively few strokes he needs to make to get his effects.

The "Afternoon Tea" of Richard Miller sings like a beautiful magazine cover. It is most decorative and modern in every respect—a lovely bit of color harmony, recalling the flower painting of Mabel Barnes of Minneapolis. Somewhat similar, though in lower tone and more delicately executed, is Robert Reid's "The White Parasol."

What shall be said of the figures and portraits of Weir, Wiles, Alexander, Beaux and Cassatt? Well, the artists are painters by the grace of God!

Nothing could be more charming, more refined, in their delicate simplicity than the face and hand in J. Alden Weir's study of a young woman. The solid honest workmanship in Irving Wiles' "An East Indian" is a joy and an inspiration and puts to shame the lack of close study of modeling—of real painting—of many of the younger artists, whose impressionistic work is merely slap-stick stuff, serving to cover up their unskilled craftsmanship.

The late John W. Alexander, famed for his "Pot of Basil," his "Evolution of the Book," his masterful portrait of Walt Whitman and of many other portraits and figures, is represented in this collection by "The Red Rose," an exquisitely refined figure piece, generously lent by his widow. This picture shows, as perhaps no other in the exhibit, the almost magic of a master, who has the seeing eye and the technical equipment. Once his canvas has been toned to the required shade, there is little left to do; a line here, a smear there, and a touch yonder, and the lady sits gracefully before us in her afternoon gown of sheer, figured silk. The "red rose" is the least conspicuous and least important detail in this lovely figure piece.

When one sees the portrait done by Cecelia Beaux and observes how much character is shown in the face; when one realizes Miss Beaux's ability to call attention to matters of significance in a portrait, and slur over the unimportant, one readily understands why she was chosen by the national art committee to paint the portraits of Cardinal Mercier, Premier Clemenceau and Admiral Beatty for the National Portraits Gallery at Washington, and why her work hangs in the Metropolitan Museum and in the Luxembourg at Paris. An air of distinction, as well as a directness and forcefulness characterizes all of her paintings.

Horatio Walker's "Sow and Pigs" picture is homely in theme, as the catalog says, but lovely in color and treatment, and shows that "It is not what you do but the way you do it that makes a work of art." That these are not La Crosse county's pure-bred, registered, improved, up-to-the-minute last word in hog-raising has nothing to do with it. These pigs are what the southerners would call elm-peelers, and may be called the same in Canada. But for coloring, for perspective of both kinds (linear and color), and for carrying its homely message of simple honest toil on the farm, this fine example of genre painting would be hard to excel.

* * * *

See the pictures. See them once, briefly for a general view; then see them again and again in detail, if you would enjoy and understand them, and grow to know and like the work of America's master painters.

Clubs and various organizations should arrange to visit the exhibit as a group, at which times gallery talks will be given, if word is sent in beforehand.

Call up Miss Harriett Bachhelder at the Chamber of Commerce, or Mrs. C. R. Pettingill or D. O. Coate at their residences, and arrangements for such talks will be gladly made.

* * * *

Perhaps visitors to the exhibit had better not try to see the pictures on Wednesday evening (7:00 to 9:00), because of the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in the exhibit room. The afternoon is open, however. Don't put off the visit thinking there is plenty of time. Always some persons become interested just in time to see the pictures being repacked for leaving. This happened at the last exhibit, and occurs regularly, in spite of all the publicity. The attendance up to date has not been what the importance of the showing would lead one to expect. This is perhaps because of the little publicity given the matter so far. Circumstances made this unavoidable; but the exhibit will receive more attention from now on. Watch the paper.

WISCONSIN BREWER SERVES SENTENCE FOR SELLING BEER

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Herbert C. Labahn, Port Washington brewer, surrendered to deputy U. S. marshals Wednesday after his lawyers had exhausted legal efforts to obtain his freedom and was taken to the house of correction to serve sentence of ten months for the manufacture and sale of beer. Mr. Labahn's attorney announced that he will immediately file an appeal and proposes to take the question to the U. S. supreme court. Labahn is the first Wisconsin brewer to be sent to prison for illegal sale of beer. In addition to the sentence, he was fined $2,000. He is widely known throughout the southern part of the state and has been prominent in politics.

PREDICT TIE-UP ON IMPORTANT MEASURES IN JAM OF CLOSING HOURS OF LEGISLATURE PRESSURE NEEDED TO PUSH THEM THROUGH

MADISON, Wis.—Several of the important bills before the legislature are going to be caught in the jam at the end of the session, anticipated for next week, and will have to be pushed through under suspension of rules if they are to be saved.

A tie up is probable on the $1,000,000 teacher's retirement fund which was finally put in form by the senate Wednesday. A fight is certain, to develop over the plain income tax proposal attached to the bill by the upper house, placing the final fate in jeopardy.

The general marketing bill, amended in the senate will likely run into trouble in the assembly when it reaches the floor again this coming week. Similar fate may attend the governor's prohibition bill, unless the lower house accepts the senate amendment prohibiting manufacture of home brew.

University, normal school, and board of control appropriation measures are all getting before the house at the closing hour. Pressure will have to be placed behind them as behind the other bills to get them through in time.

Following adjournment which it is expected will be taken Friday of next week, at least 10 days will be given the governor to consider bills presented to him. Sine die adjournment will probably be on July 5.

MAKE US GLAD

MAKE us glad according to the days wherein Thou has afflicted us, and the years wherein we have seen evil.—Psalms 54: 2.

Old Clothes for the Near-East

OLD clothes are a problem in most households. The trousers with the shiny seats and the fringed bottoms, the coats with the polished elbows and the skirts with the wrong line at waist or hem are always occupying storage room that could be better used by something not yet in retirement, and storage room is at a premium in most of the compact modern houses. So the bundle-collection for the Near-East relief work which will be held in La Crosse Friday and Saturday, in addition to its sympathetic and charitable appeal is something of a boon to housekeepers. It is not often that one has the opportunity to do so much positive good in a splendidly worthwhile cause without some personal sacrifice. Still more seldom comes the opportunity to assist the unfortunate with actual benefit to the giver. Perhaps this is throwing an rather unidealistic light on an enterprise that is second to none in its compulsion upon every American who feels any measure of responsibility for distress or any obligation to a race martyred for its unswerving devotion to our common faith. But it is a practical consideration that should not be without weight in most homes of La Crosse, and since the object of the collection is to assemble as much clothing as possible one sees no need of apology for reminding those who have the clothing to give of the matter-of-fact realities. Experience shows that the heart of La Crosse needs no spurring to awaken it to the call of misery and misfortune. One can safely take its sympathetic reaction for granted, and perhaps do larger service by suggesting sources of assistance than by enlarging upon the unquestionably urgent need of it. One feels that it is sufficient to say to La Crosse that there is great need, and that the cast-off clothing which clutters its trunks and closets will meet the need.

Heroism

WRITING to a mother of soldiers, who had befriended him, Corporal Glenn G. Dahlem, Madison, whose mother had passed out of this life before war came to test the hearts of motherhood, wrote from a military camp:

"Some one must stay upon the field. I hope the Lord lets me stay upon the field and by so doing a comrade may return to his mother's outstretched arms. I would charge clear to the innermost trench if I knew my request would be granted."

A few days ago Corporal Dahlem's body was returned to Madison for burial. It came with those of other Madison boys who had "stayed upon the field." His prayer had been granted. What mother's boy returned to her because of Glenn's service we can not know, but his courage in action was such as to make sure that before he fell he had stopped the fire of more than one enemy aimed at other mothers' sons.

How many heroic hearts, some snuffed out, others living, will remain unsung because lost in the mass of American heroism, we can not know. But here and there one left a record of nobility in tangible form, and these we honor and applaud. To Glenn we pay the homage due true American manhood, and through him, and others like him, we pay to all heroic Americanism its just mead of praise and gratification.

Jimmie Cox Stays on the Desk

JUDGING by the announcements of presidential appointments of late, it will be more convenient for the next four years to hold conventions of the Ohio Editorial Association in Washington. An invidious editorial gentleman, presumably a democrat, wants to know who is going to run the newspapers of Ohio "if this keeps on." Well, brother, The Dayton News will continue without interruption, at least.

Another Gold Rush

FROM the Far North, Canadian Indians bring a story about a river of gold. Prospectors are rushing northward. A wild goose chase, you say? You're probably right! The real gold mines are the opportunities right here in Wisconsin. Men have hunted gold since history began. Yet only 30,000 tons of gold are above the earth's surface today. Maybe one in a hundred seekers finds the gold horde. But look about you and you'll see the average of success runs higher among your neighbors.

Of One Faith

PITTSBURGH—All Christian denominations will worship in the union church to be constructed on the summit of historic Laurel Hill mountain, Westmoreland county. There will be a separate altar for Catholics and one for Episcopalians. All other Protestant denominations will share the third altar.

WHY not? The ancient pagans needed a lot of temples, because their notions of religion included a pantheon of dozens of gods and demi-gods, and each had his individual shrine. But why does every community in the United States, smallest to largest, need from three to three hundred temples for its various Christian sects? Differences of religious interpretation and doctrine may dictate differences in forms of worship, in manner and method and purpose. But every temple is dedicated to the One God, and every sect bases its belief upon a study of the same Holy Book. Would it not be easier for Christians to attain that fraternity and unity in essentials which would do so much for the coming of the Kingdom, and which was inculcated by the Founder of the Faith, if they mingled as brethren in the same sacred edifices? And what a factor it could be in promoting mutual understanding and the tolerance that is its inevitable accompaniment! Organic church unity may be at present a Utopian aspiration, only to be realized in the remote future, but there seems no insurmountable objection to this experiment with the diverse creeds using the same temple for worship in sympathetic amity and concord. That such a movement generally adopted would result in releasing for the advancement of Christianity great resources and energy now absorbed in supporting a top-heavy complexity and almost competitive organization of Christian bodies seems a reasonable deduction.

Junior Colleges in High Schools

BILL 193-S provides for the establishment of five junior colleges in the state beginning July 1, 1922. These colleges offering the first two years of college work will, because of the necessities of the situation, be located in our high schools, which long ago, were called the "peoples' colleges."

These junior colleges provide for a wider distribution of the opportunities of higher education. They make higher education cheaper for the students who can live at home and make it possible for those who cannot leave home. They make it possible to keep our young people home under parental supervision for two years longer. They make possible a strengthening of our public high schools in the state.

The motion for reconsideration of the junior college bill in the assembly should be reconsidered.

SALVATION BY MATRIMONY

By MARTHA M'CULLOCH-WILLIAMS

"Coming? There's the last bell," Zillah called to her cousin Frances from the topmost step. Still Sunday sunlight made her glow like a rose newly open. Frances, noting it, sighed faintly—she craved beauty of all things—no transfigurings of light or shadow could ever make her other than hopelessly plain. At least to her own eyes—her mirror did not picture her best moments. Few indeed ever saw them—they came when she was wrapped in the peace of green pastures, with the gleam of still waters gemming the distance. Something awoke then that made her as one with the good world, part and parcel of its harmony and rythm.

"Do come! It makes me fidgety sitting alone in our big pew." Zillah entreated.

Frances rose slowly. "If you can wait two minutes," she said, speaking almost loathly. Yet in less time she was beside Frances, trig, dim, severe, a perfect foil for the other figure, a concrete of roses, ribbons and girlish charm.

Two men were already seated in their pew—tall, young, well set up, well-looking in every way. They stood deferentially outside for the two girls to seat themselves, and later went through the ritual with a reverent ease that bespoke habit. Also they listened alertly, catching every point of the rector's discourse. Frances was unaccountably glad it was one of his best, brieflsh but meaty throughout, and breathing the vital witness of the spirit. The church was full. After the benediction the strangers halted uncertainly. Then one turned to Frances with, "Please, do you think we may speak with the rector? We came especially to hear him. It may be my only chance. My father was a good friend of his all through the course at Princeton——"

"Then he must have known my father, too. Did you ever hear of Gordon Trabue?" Zillah interrupted.

"Rather! I'm his namesake," the stranger said, holding out a card, which read: "Gordon Trabue Whitsett." "And I've grown up on traditions of the triumvirate," he added. "To think of finding part of it in just this way."

"My middle name begins with W," Zillah said laughing. "I'd surely be a John Whitsett if I were the man I ought to be."

"Don't say that! Nature knew best," young Whitsett said, looking down at her. Then Frances and the other stranger being duly known, the four of them sought the vestry, where the rector rejoiced over them almost as if they had been brands from the burning. After a bit Zillah declared: "Everybody goes home with me to dinner. Yes—you, too!" shaking her finger at Rector Fitch. "Frances won't mind going by for my Aunt Zillah, your good angel—and mine. I daren't trust you out of my sight. Daddy will be home from that tiresome convention—and gladder than anybody to see you. He'd disinherit me, I'm sure, if I let his namesake escape," and, smiling at Billy Brent, "he has always a double welcome for the friend of his friend."

"Frances, take that lad along with you. I know my Zillah—she is set in her ways—if you have to use force do it gently, please." The rector laughed. Frances frowned—in spirit only. She did not mind doing Zillah's bidding, nor envy her the ease with which she carried things before her. But it was hard to have to make conversation with some one new and strange. She had no small talk whatever, not even of the weather.

"The rector trod on several 'corns of your mind,'" Billy declared as they went down the vestry steps.

"How do you know?" Frances asked, startled.

"Your eyes tell tales," Billy retorted. "They are dangerous truthful."

"How?" Frances asked.

"By turning away friends, even when they do not make enemies," was the reply.

"I don't know how you can know," she said, a perplexed line drawing between her brows.

"Honest Injun—don't you resent my being sent along?" from Billy.

She nodded—"Yes—I know we should bore each other to no purpose, and that is such waste of living."

"Let's not do it then. Instead, tell each other all about ourselves. That is always interesting—to the party of the first part, however, the last may fare," Billy said, standing still a second.

"I doubt if we are worth telling," Frances said dispassionately. At least I'm not. I'm just what I look—somebody born to help fill up the census. All I really know is I was born and I shall die. I mean nothing to anybody, good or bad. Sometimes I feel as though I'd rather be hated, real hard, than have the whole world tepid."

"Bravo! Now we're getting down to cases," Billy said, taking her hand masterfully. "I've been looking this long time for a properly educated woman—one who knows how to pray to God, to love man, to knit and to sew. And now that I have found her I shall never let her go."

Here the big Whitsett car overtook them, bore them on to the rectory, acquired the mistress of the manse more or less forcibly, then whirled the aggregation away to the Trabue home. A stout and ruddy gentleman at ease on the piazza got actually pale as he shook his namesake's hand. After a machine gun fire of greetings and inquiries, he was roaring through long distance: "Jack Whitsett, you scoundrel, come right on to the love feast. Not a word from you this dozen years—now that boy of yours is doing his best to steal my only girl. Asked for her. What you talking about, man? That's old stuff—clean out of fashion. Never mind the hundred miles and more—bet you've got a car that knocks off eighty to the hour without half trying. We won't wait dinner for you—but there'll be supper later. Come, I say! Your country calls you. Answer here, in person."

A gurgling laugh came over the wire. Hearing it young Whitsett smiled: "He'll be here." Then to the rector: "The pater is strong for 'pure religion and undefiled'—don't you dare pull any progressive stuff at the reading desk tonight, if you care to keep his friendship."

"I'm glad he's coming—need somebody to speak for me in the worst way," Billy Brent broke in, flushing a little. "I'm a stranger, nobody's son nor grandson in this neck of the woods. Pappy Jack knows me from my beginning—he'll give me a character only twice as bad as I deserve—"

"Isn't this rather sudden?" the rector asked with twinkling eyes that seemed to burn Frances's cheeks—they flushed so beautifully.

"I suppose hunger makes even a minister impolite," his wife cajoled gently. "You should certainly know better than to ask such leading questions after all you said this morning of 'the gospel of perfect love.'"

"Were you there invisibly?" young Whitsett asked amid the general laughter. A head shake answered him, but after a minute she said: "It's this way, you see—I get out his sermon for him the same as his clean bands. If I didn't he'd forget and read the same things so often the vestry would have the trouble of calling a new man."

"Salvation by matrimony, eh, boys," Mr. Trabue said with a fine fatherly intonation, his eyes upon the young men. "True doctrine! 'Go to it!' You won't repent. A good wife is above rubies."

"We're happy converts, sir," Whitsett said audaciously. "Since you keep the best in stock, tell us the price."

"Price? Oh, a real man," came the answer. "Now let's feed, other things can wait."

HOW'S YOUR MUSICAL EAR? UNDEVELOPED? THEN DEVELOP IT!

"I can't see why a person wants to go to an opera and hear somebody get up and shout his head off," disgustedly declared Josephine as she finished reading a newspaper account of the opening of a grand opera season. "And I can't see anything in sitting and listening to those old symphony orchestras. It's all a waste of time and an awful bore, seems to me. Give me good old jazz music."

Josephine, apparently, has not been introduced to the powers of good music. Her musical ear hasn't been developed. This may not be her fault, for she may not have been urged by her parents to take an interest in good music.

Music, to one who has an ear for it, is inspiring. It is resting. After a hard day's work the man or the woman who appreciates good music can sit down and listen to a good selection and afterwards feel rested and ready to tackle more work.

Music Is Everywhere

Many a new idea, many a clever invention, many a great story or deed, has been born and developed in the mind of a person while listening to good music. It inspires thought, and thinkers are in great demand today.

We can't go many places any more without hearing some kind of music. If we watch a parade, we hear the band. If we go to a movie we hear music. When we go to Sunday school and church we hear more music. Music is to be found most every place nowadays. The trouble is so much of it isn't good music. But when we do hear good music isn't it a pity more of us can't appreciate it?

The Musical Are Popular

The musical ear should be developed while one is young. Listen to all the good music you can. If possible, learn to play some musical instrument. Sing the good songs. All this will be helpful.

Besides, the boy or girl who can sing, or play a musical instrument, is generally more popular than the one who cannot. Think of some one of your acquaintance who plays a piano, or a violin, or who sings. Isn't he popular?

It is just as easy to listen to the good music while your musical ear is yet in the developing stage as it is to listen to the bing! bang! biff! of the jazz band. And it will be more beneficial—if it doesn't seem so immediately, it will when you get older.

Stone Age Stuff

FROM BIG LEAGUE BALL PLAYERS

Playing in the Outfield

Written especially for the Boys and Girls Newspaper by

Clarence Twombly

Outfielder of the Chicago Cubs

All the positions of the outfield are played in about the same manner and anything said about one can generally apply to all.

Outfielders should know the players of the opposing team very well. They should know the peculiarities of each batter. If a man usually hits the ball to one part of the field, the outfielders should know about it, and be Johnny-on-the-spot to receive the hit.

Don't Hold the Ball

A fielder must be able to judge a fly ball accurately. This comes with constant practice—nothing else.

Never hold the ball once you get it. Get it into the infield where it can be used to advantage. You can't tag a runner out in the outfield.

Outfielders should have strong arms. It takes a strong arm to make a long and accurate peg to the infield. Speaking of long throws—never throw to first base when there are no men on bases except the one runner going to first. You may over throw the base, or the ball may go wild and give the runner a chance to get to the second bag. Throw to second.

Centerfielder Must Be Fast

The centerfielder should be a man who is quick and sure of himself. He can get more balls if he is.

A young fielder will some times find that he becomes very nervous when he is about to catch a fly ball. This is probably caused by the fact that while waiting for the ball to come he has so much time to think of what might happen if he should miss it. About the only way to overcome this nervousness is to keep your eye on the ball and forget that anything wrong can happen.

Of the Great Mirror

BY DR. WILLIAM E. BARTON

John Henry Newman, that truly great, but not always consistent scholar and ecclesiastic, once said:

"I look out of myself into the world of men, and here I see a sight which fills me with unspeakable distress. The world seems simply to give the lie to that great truth of which my whole being is so full, and the effect upon me is, in consequence, as a matter of necessity, as confusing as if it denied that I am in existence myself.

"If I looked into a mirror and did not see my own face, I should have the same sort of feeling which actually comes upon me when I look into this living world and see no reflection of its Creator."

These are appalling words. They bring us face to face with the contemplation of mankind placed in a world a good God has made, and where, as the old hymn declares:

"Every prospect pleases, and only man is vile."

Must Face World

We shall never get far in our effort to make the world better, if we have not courage to face frankly the fact that the world needs to be made better.

I have always liked the sermon of the back-woods preacher from the text. "Those that have turned the world upside down have come hither also." The points of his sermon were:

First, the world is wrong-side up.

Second, the world needs to be turned right-side up.

Third, we are the fellows to do it.

Not Hopeless

Personally, I have never been able to go the length of Newman in his despair of the world of mankind. The human world as I see it is a coin, worn and soiled, but of precious metal, and stamped with the Name and Face of the Great King.

The human world, into which Newman looked, and was appalled because men were so unlike the good God, who made them, is a mirror, and in it we discern but dimly the outlines of the divine purpose which made it; but though a tarnished mirror, it still is a mirror of that purpose.

Every generous impulse, every thrill of holy ambition, every incentive to right decision and heroic endeavor, every affirmation of conscience, is, after all, a true line upon the great mirror of God, revealing the high purpose of creation and the possibilities of human destiny.

With all its faults and sins, which are many, it is not a hopeless world. It is a good world, and if we try, we can make it better.

GOVERNOR VETOES BILL TO CHANGE ELECTION LAWS

No Reason for Nomination Paper Signers to Give Postoffice Address Says Blaine

MADISON, Wis.—Change in election laws, unless public interest demands it, is opposed by Governor Blaine, he said Thursday in a statement accompanying veto of an assembly bill requiring voters who sign nomination papers to add their postoffice address.

"There is a reason for requiring the voter to designate his residence in order to advise those who are entitled to know whether or not he is a qualified voter," the governor declares. "There is a reason also for requiring the date of signing to be given as the statute provides at what time a candidate may begin to circulate his nomination papers.

"There is no reason, however, why the postoffice address should be added, and to add the postoffice address serves no public purpose.

"The people have become familiar with the manner of signing nomination papers, and I think it is a mistake to constantly change our election machinery. The less complicated nomination papers are, the better is the public served.

"It is sufficiently difficult now to have nomination papers in proper form, and unless there is some good reason for adding additional complications, the primary election law should not be disturbed."

MANY LAKE SHIPS IDLE

DELUTH, Minn.—The largest number of idle ships ever harbored at the head of the lakes is anchored at Duluth and Superior docks according to harbor officials. Twenty-six steamships and barges are tied up here. Failure of the seasonal revival of ore shipments to take place is given as the reason for the slump. Many vessels bringing coal from lower lake ports which ordinarily carry ore on the return trip are forced to leave "light" for lower lake points.

ARNOLD BILL FOR CITY MARKETS IS KILLED WEDNESDAY

Assembly Approves Bill to Regulate Practice of Chiropractic

MADISON, Wis.—Municipal markets will not be authorized by the present legislature as a result of the assembly action Wednesday in killing the Arnold proposal to permit cities of the first class to establish a department of markets.

The effort to reconsider the vote by which the Pierson marketing bill was killed also failed, leaving only two related bills before the legislature, the Kleist proposal to authorize cities to store food products and the J. C. Hanson bill permitting cities to take over the distribution of milk.

The assembly approved of the Benfy bill regulating the practice of chiropractic by placing the licensing power in the state board of medical examiners. There was considerable opposition to this measure by the chiropractors who desired representation on the medical board.

INGROWN TOE NAIL TURNS OUT ITSELF

"Outgro" is a harmless, antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

EQUAL RIGHTS BILL PASSED IN ASSEMBLY BY 59 TO 28 VOTE

Measure Amended to Exempt Women from Jury Service on Request

MADISON, Wis.—Equal rights for women was favored in the assembly on Wednesday evening, when the house by a vote of 59 to 28 passed the senate bill giving complete equal rights to women. The house incorporated an amendment by Lucas, which provides that women may be exempted from jury service on their request. This will compel the return of the bill to the senate, but no further opposition is anticipated.

By a vote of 55 to 33 the assembly refused to kill the "equal rights" bill and the measure was then amended and passed.

The assembly concurred in the senate bill reapportioning the senate and assembly districts of the state. The assembly 50 to 37 killed the Kleist bill, which would permit first and second class cities to own and operate storage warehouses.

Assemblyman J. D. Grandine made a fight to kill the bill which increases the amount paid for law supplements to each paper at the end of the session from $100 to $125. The bill was then concurred in. It now goes to the governor.

The big highway bill, classifying the roads of the state and limiting the truck roads that may be carried on these roads, was passed in the assembly Wednesday evening. This is considered one of the big bills of the session and has had the opposition of many of the truck manufacturing concerns in the state.

Advancement was given to the bill making a railroad ticket good for thirty days. An amendment by Dahl was incorporated by which this measure shall not apply to excursion tickets. Assemblyman Frank Prescott, Milwaukee, has moved a reconsideration of the vote by which this bill was passed and further action will be taken on the measure on Friday.

BILLS TO REORGANIZE STATE COMMISSIONS KILLED IN ASSEMBLY

Three Measures for Consolidation of Boards Meet With Defeat

MADISON, Wis. — Reorganization and consolidation of commissions was disapproved by the assembly Wednesday when it killed without a roll call three measures introduced by the special joint commission to investigate commissions at the capitol.

The first of these measures would have abolished the state board of education the second would have modified the powers of the state board of vocational education, and the third would have replaced the present three man tax commission with a single commissioner.

All of these bills had been recommended for killing by the finance committee. The only measure introduced as a result of the investigating committee's action which has survived, is the one abolishing the conservation commission and creating a one man conservation warden. This was passed by the assembly but has not yet been considered by the senate.

ASSEMBLY MEASURE REGULATES USE OF HIGHWAYS BY TRUCKS

Lower House Passes Bill to Classify Roads and Limit Weight of Loads

TWELVE TONS LIMIT TO BE CARRIED ON CLASS A ROADS

Seven-ton Limit Placed on Other Highways

MADISON, Wis. — Advocates of highway protection and the regulation of truck traffic won a hard fought victory in the assembly Wednesday when they carried to engrossment and final passage, 47 to 38, the committee bill classifying highways and limiting the weight of trucks.

Under the provisions of the new law, if the governor signs it, the roads of the state will be placed into class A and class B, depending upon the type of surfacing material. The state highway engineer is empowered to classify the highways and to provide regulations for motor truck traffic over them.

No truck weighing more than twelve tons with load will be permitted to travel any Wisconsin road, while in the class B highways weight limits are placed at seven tons. Authority is given to keep trucks off roads during spring thaws and wet weather or at any time that the highway commissioner might designate.

The measure was strongly advocated by farmer members, who declared that heavy trucks have been tearing down the roads faster than the taxpayers could build them up.

"It is entirely a question of whether we will build roads for the trucks, or make the manufacturers build trucks to fit our roads," Assemblyman Edwards declared on the floor.

Truck manufacturers did not oppose the principle of regulating traffic, but fought the provisions providing for highway classification declaring it impracticable and dangerous. An amendment offered by them giving the highway officials power to close a road not more than ninety days a year was killed.

COUNTY OFFICIALS DEFEAT CITY AT PICNIC BALL GAME

"A grand time was had by all" at the county board's picnic Wednesday at John Richmond's farm, French Island. The county officials' ball team defeated the city team, 7 to 5. The batteries were Kabat and Carr for the county and Wittenberg and Didisch for the city. There were eats galore, in fact nearly everybody ate all day and still couldn't get away with all the good things that had been provided. Everybody there declared Emil Kriebach's bouillon was something to rave about. Music was furnished by Joseph Callaway who sent a phonograph equipped with an "intensifier that made it possible to hear the strains of "Mammy" above the din that arose when Walter Winter smashed out the longest drive made during the ball game.

FUNDS FOR NORMALS AND UNIVERSITY ARE VOTED BY SENATE

Bills Sent to Assembly for Concurrence; Surtax Amendment Killed

OVER THIRTEEN MILLIONS APPROPRIATED FOR SCHOOLS

University Building Program Cut from the Bill

MADISON, Wis.—The University of Wisconsin appropriation of approximately $5,050,000 annually for the next biennium, including a million dollar revolving fund, and the normal school appropriations of $1,900,000 annually, passed the senate late Wednesday and were sent to the assembly for concurrence. Ten senators voted against grant of the appropriation to the university when an attempt by Senator Severson to attach a surtax provision to the bill, was killed, 19 to 13. Amendment was offered to both the university and normal school measure by Senator Severson calling for a graduated tax on incomes over five thousand dollars to raise half of the needed funds.

Determined effort will be made in the assembly, with probability of success, to attach the same surtax amendments turned down in the senate.

The two appropriation measures passed by the senate are the largest of the session, aggregating thirteen million, eight hundred thousand dollars with the revolving funds included.

Senator Nye, chairman of the finance committee, told the senate that the appropriations represented liberal grants to both the university and normal schools although at least one million dollars below those being granted by surrounding states. He explained that the entire university building program of approximately three million dollars had been cut from the bill.

Roll-call on the surtax amendments follows:

For indefinite postponement: Bentley, Bird, Buck, Clark, Conant, Czerwinski Jennings, Kuckuk, Lange, Morris, Mulberger, Nye, Peterson, Ridgway, Skogmo, Smith, Titus, Werden.—19.

Against indefinite postponement: Anderson, Arnold, Beyer, Bilgrien, Deanhardt, Hirschy, Huber, Kleist, Moran, Olson, Roethe, Severson, Staudenmeyer.—13.

$30.08 each, not a single set of which it is charged, was ever used, the harness later being sold to the United States harness company at a minimum price of $5.21 and $4.59 a double set. Orders were placed by Col. Goetz with his own company, it is charged, for more than $500,000 worth of leather goods.

Gave Them Option

On Sept. 3, 1920, without advertising and without bids, it is alleged, Mr. Morse gave Goetz, Byron, Benke and Cochran an option on all surplus leather goods of the government. The United States Harness corporation was immediately formed, with Goetz, Byron Benke, and Cochran as principal officers, drawing a salary of $25,000 each a year, and controlling $130,000 of the stock. Col. Goetz, and Maj. Benke, retired from the army the day after the option was given.

Under the contracts, the United States Harness corporation is to remake such of the harness as needs remaking and then sell it, the government to receive 60 percent of the gross receipts and the company 40 per cent. A minimum price is fixed on the various models of harness as for example, artillery harness, from $14.60 to $12.80. This harness, according to Representative Graham, cost the government $226 to $170 per set.

A MUSICAL EVENT

By D. O. COATE

LA CROSSE has had many things musical the past year, many of them noteworthy, but if town gossip, comment, and general all around interest mean anything Ralph Toland is going to have a house that will call for standing room only sign.

And without any undue flattery for either Mr. Toland or the La Crosse public, there are excellent reasons why this should be so. In the first place Ralph Toland's work is good, it is mighty well worth hearing. He has made a real hit where the competition is one of white heat in its testing. Marco, the famed Italian of New York City predicts a real career for him.

City is Loyal

The second big reason for an enthusiastic capacity audience is that La Crosse is loyal to its sons who can really deliver the goods. It has produced a good many big men and women. It knows what it means to sacrifice, work and make good, and never yet has it failed to come across in the right spirit and give a welcoming hand and homecoming support which mean so much. One thing, of course it has to know all about things and up to this point not half has been said that is of real interest about this recital. We have just come across some more interesting facts and news.

A recital worthy the name is something more than a collection of pretty songs. It is also something more than an effort on the part of the singer to show his profound knowledge of classical music and foreign tongues ranging from Hindu to Cherokee. Everyone really likes good music, or classical music so-called. Mr. Toland brings out all of these features in short talks. The only criticism of the Druid program is that some think it too short, requiring slightly over an hour.

Sale at Office

The Druid club which is handling the concert reports a most satisfactory advance sale. They desire to announce however, that as they cannot possibly get around to see everyone owing to the limited membership of the club, those who have not been called on should reserve seats at the box office at once.

A few closing remarks are in order. Every music lover, every person who enjoys the real things of the heart in music is going to have a real musical treat Friday night. The dramatic and interpretative features are specially interesting. When Ralph Toland steps on the stage he is going to receive as good as he gives for he is going to know that La Crosse has not forgotten the reputation he made with the Philharmonic orchestra and other public appearances for being a real entertainer. Many of the hardest boiled, practical music haters have often been heard to say: "Well, I didn't know that I could be so completely interested. That "Danny Deever" surely raised my hair." Mr. Toland has made just as good wherever he has sung in the east. This is not the first time that La Crosse has put its stamp of approval on its young men and women only to have it verified in the cultural and art centers of the country.

Let's go!

BEER RULES AWAIT CONGRESS ACTION ON VOLSTEAD BILL

WASHINGTON.—Issuance of beer regulations by the internal revenue bureau it was said Thursday at the treasury, will await congressional action on the Volstead beer bill unless passage of this legislation is deferred for a considerable period.

VERDICT EXPECTED TONIGHT IN CASE OF JUDGE SMALLEY

Closing Arguments to be Presented During the Afternoon

ULTIMATE DECISION UP TO SUPREME COURT IS BELIEF

Defense Asks Dismissal on Grounds Case is Not Proved

LANCASTER, Wis.—A verdict is expected Thursday night in the trial of Circuit Judge Sherman E. Smalley of the Fifth Judicial district, charged with violation of the corrupt practices act by Attorney General W. J. Morgan under complaint of a petition signed by 500 friends of ex-Judge Levi H. Bancroft of Richland Center, whom he defeated for re-election April 5. The day's schedule called for both sides resting their cases by noon with arguments to the jury occupying most of the afternoon.

Judge A. H. Reid of Wausau, who is trying the case, has prepared a list of questions on which the jury is to pass. When the verdict on these questions is returned, Judge Reid will pass judgment as to whether Judge Smalley shall retain the seat which he took two weeks ago or whether the seat shall be declared vacant and Governor Blaine be called upon to appoint a successor.

Indications wer that the state supreme ciurt will be called on for an ultimate decision regardless of the outcome of the case here.

It is charged that petitioners of Smalley circulated leaflets containing malicious statements about Judge Bancroft, especially that he opposed prohibition and woman suffrage.

Judge Bancroft denied the charges, saying he would prove that he had voted in favor of woman suffrage and that he was against saloons.

J. F. Clifford of Green Bay, special prosecutor, representing Attorney General Morgan, promised a complete refutation of charges made by the Smalley campaign committee against Judge Bancroft.

When the state rested its case, A. C. Kopp of Platteville, counsel for Smalley, moved dismissal of the case on the ground that the state had failed to show that Smalley was connected with the matter complained of or that he had a campaign committee. The motion was over-ruled.

LABOR DEMANDS U. S. INVESTIGATION OF SEAMEN'S STRIKE

Resolution at Federation Meeting Calls on Senate to Adopt La Follette Bill

DENVER, Col.—The American Federation of Labor today by resolution called upon the United States senate to adopt the La Follette bill providing for a federal investigation of the nation-wide "lockout" of seamen.

The resolution introduced by the International Seamen's union declared that combination of European and American Ship Owners aided by the United States shipping board, have up to this moment been busy thwarting the American people in their legitimate desire and purpose to share in the overseas commerce and in building for America a sea power corresponding to the American seaboard."

The convention adopted a resolution calling for a congressional investigation into conditions in the cotton mills of the south.

Every assistance was pledged by the federation to United Textile workers now conducting a strike of more than 15,000 workers in these mills.

CHILDREN'S FRIEND DEAD AT OSHKOSH

Former Circus Performer Dies Riding on Merry-go-round

OSHKOSH, Wis.—There was sorrow among the "kids" of this city Thursday, for their genial old friend, Frank Sherback, pioneer circus performer, and merry-go-round operator, is dead. He passed away Wednesday night, while riding on his whirligig, on a vacant lot on the south side. His son-in-law, Harry Weydt, who was associated with him in the business of giving joy to the boys and girls, found him dead, of heart failure. There was a smile on his face, for the day had been an unusually happy one for the aged man and his wife, as both had celebrated their birthdays. Mr. Sherback was 74 and his wife 72.

Sherback at one time was noted on two continents as a sword swallower with circuses. He also served as an acrobat, strong man, foot juggler and pantomimist. His sword swallowing act brought him before crowned heads, including the kaiser of Germany and czar of Russia. When he was 60 years old he went into the merry-go-round business, continuing in that line ever since.

MACHINE GUNS ARE SEIZED ON STEAMER BOUND FOR IRELAND

Government Officials Investigating Shipment of Arms Held in Hoboken

GUNS TAKEN FROM CUSTOMS MEN BY HOBOKEN POLICE

Warrant Charges Theft of Weapons from Frank Williams

NEW YORK.—An investigation was under way Thursday to determine how and why more than five hundred modern machine guns with hundreds of spare parts, were placed on board the steamer East Side, while at her pier in Hoboken awaiting departure for an Irish port. Officials of the customs service, the department of justice and the United States shipping board began checking up on the facts in an effort to discover to whom the weapons were intended to be shipped, and who caused them to be placed on board the vessel.

The arms were seized Wednesday by United States customs officials and government agents expressed the belief that they were destined for Ireland.

Subsequently they were taken from the custom officials who were preparing to cart them away, by Hoboken police, acting under a search and seizure warrant sworn out by Frank Williams, who said the guns had been stolen from him. The investigators also turned their activities towards Williams in an effort to determine how he came into possession of the arms. Williams refused to make any statement other than to say the weapons were stolen from him on June 11.

The seizure, made by the customs officials on the ground that a shipment of arms was being attempted without compliance with maritime regulations, was brought about, reports said, by two changes of crews on the East Side.

MRS. JAMES HARNISCH AND CHILDREN.

CARD OF THANKS

In fond memory of Mary Kathryn Louise Foster, a true sister and devoted daughter, who passed away June 16th, 1920.

It is just a year ago today
That our Mary passed away,
A precious one from us has gone
The voice we loved is stilled.
A place is vacant in our home
That never can be filled;
Our loved one rests in slumber deep,
In silent and eternal sleep.

Again to our friends and relatives do we extend our heartfelt thanks for the many kindnesses extended us during our sad bereavement.
MRS. B. J. FOSTER AND FAMILY.

Vacation Time
Is Here

Summer excursion tickets were placed on sale beginning June 1st, final return limit Oct. 31st; diverse route and liberal stopover privileges.

A vacation is an investment—the best one many folks make—not a luxury. Weary, "worked out," indoor folks need an outdoor vacation—where they can fish, golf, climb mountains, ride, rest, recreate; rural folks need the inspiration that comes from a visit to the "wonder" cities; both come back clear in mind, with new strength, new energy, new ambitions.

Both in the East and in the West there are scores of places par excellence.

Decide when and where you'll go—come in and let me help you plan your trip. Then—"hit the trail"—West!

NEAR EAST BUNDLE DAY PLANNED HERE TO AID SUFFERERS

Local Committee Will Receive Contributions in Rivoli Theater Building

A "Near East Bundle Day" is the latest call for the help of the needy Armenians and Syrians; whose deplorable sufferings continue to grow worse since the World War. In response to a call from President Harding, Governor Blaine, General Wood, and other leading citizens, a group of women of La Crosse have organized for the purpose of gathering cast off clothing and fabrics for this worthy cause.

Mrs. Odin J. Oyen is chairman of the special committee. They have opened "headquarters" on the ground floor of the Rivoli building; where they will be glad to receive bundles on Friday and Saturday of this week. It is important that the entire city take interest in this call; of which Gen. Wood has said: "I feel that, however worthy are the many appeals which are being made to the great heart of America these days, that this call from the little children of the land where Christ gave his life for mankind, can not be unanswered."

This committee recognizes that many of our citizens have given already of their funds for this cause; but, the extreme nature of the suffering in that far away land, especially as the next winter approaches, makes it necessary to press this particular appeal at once; so the clothing can be sent overseas in time to be worked over before the frosts and winds of next autumn sweep down upon that meagerly clothed multitude.

Any one who will help the movement by lending their automobile for gathering bundles should communicate with Mrs. Oyen. Remember, that the time is short and that a "pull altogether" is the only way that city-wide results of large compass can be obtained. Anything made of cloth can be worked over, especially for children. Don't stand back on account of worn or torn conditions; Send, or bring what you have; whether it be one of those six yard bell skirts of the days gone by or a last season's shiny seat trousers. You surely have something to swell the shipment; so send it down to the Rivoli building, on Friday.

KANSAS LACKS HELP TO HARVEST WHEAT

TOPEKA, Kan.—With the Kansas wheat harvest under way fully a week earlier than anticipated, the supply of harvest hands is far short of the demand, according to reports received Thursday by the labor division of the Kansas industrial court. Thirty thousand extra hands will be required it was estimated.

Urgent calls for hands were received today from Hutchinson and other points in central and southern Kansas. An acute shortage of help is expected between June 20 and 25 when the harvest will be in full swing.

CAST IN LA CROSSE MADE PICTURE WINS APPLAUSE OF ALL

Local Screen Actors Appear in Person at Riviera; Picture at Casino Today and Friday

Two packed houses Tuesday and Wednesday nights greeted the made-in-La Crosse comedy photoplay, "Can You Beat It?" played by a local cast and using La Crosse locations, at the Riviera theater. Today and Friday the picture will be shown at the Casino while on Saturday and Sunday it will be featured at the Strand.

The cast appeared in person at the Riviera both nights and will not appear with the picture again. Three of the cast, Myron Locke, Walter Wagner and Mr. Peter I. Larson, the Keystone copper of the play, also sang Wednesday night, that is Locke and Wagner sang and the tears, sobs and sighs were furnished by Larson. The cast of the picture is: Myron Locke, "Buddy Case;" Walter Wagner, minister, farmhand and blackface tramp; Sylvia Wane, "Flo;" Mrs. Inga Johnson, "Peggy;" Mary Buelow, the village gossip; Tress McWithee, "Mrs. Case;" Florence Dieball, the aunt; Ted Johnson, lawyer; Thelma Smith, Peggy's chum; Vera Kowitz, a country girl; Peter I. Larson, the copper; Fern Ness, in a fairy dance; Thomas Zilinski, foreman.

The work of the entire cast won much applause, with Locke, Wagner and Peter Larson playing the comedy roles like honest-to-goodness professionals. Wagner's work is especially good. In the barnyard scene where Wagner as the farmhand makes love to Sylvia Wane as "Flo," Wagner is pushed backwards into a deep watering trough by Myron Locke. Into the cold water Wagner flounders coming up for air three times and spouting water from his ears, eyes and nose. In the freight yard scene Wagner plays the blackface tramp role who is found by a railroad "dick" cuddled up to Myron Locke in a "side door" Pullman. Hauled out of his nest, Wagner makes a dash for liberty. The detective unlimbers his gat and starts peppering Wagner's disappearing figure. Suddenly, Wagner's flying coat-tails burst into flame and smoke. He was literally all burned up when the spectators are treated to a rare bit of slap-stick Mack Sennett comedy. Wagner is headed straight for a deep, oozing mud puddle. The fiery coat-tails are getting uncomfortable so he takes a flying slide into the mud, landing smack on the coat-tails. Fire's out; the flight for liberty continues. Tress McWithee makes a sweet, ingratiating mother. She merely has to act natural. Mary Buelow, dressed in the style of about 1870, makes an acceptable village gossip, like the kind you read about. Peter Larson makes two flying falls that rival any ever made by the Keystone or Century comedy coppers.

Besides the comedy, scenes of La Crosse taken from an altitude of 2,000 feet by Arthur Lund in the airship "Flip," piloted by Irvin E. Stickler, one of the cleverest and nerviest young pilots in this section, give an excellent idea of what the city looks like from the air. Pictures also are shown of the Jefferson school kids at play, the employes of the north side branch of the La Crosse Garment company, and the funeral procession of Bishop Schwebach.

STREETCAR FARES IN DETROIT CUT TO FIVE CENTS

DETROIT, Mich.—The city and the Detroit United Railways reached an agreement Wednesday in the latest fare dispute when the company's offer to reduce fares to five cents with one cent for transfers was accepted. A demand for a reduction was made upon the company following a recent wage reduction accepted by platform men.

CRUDE OIL PRICES AT LOWEST LEVEL FOR FIVE YEARS

INDEPENDENCE, Kan.—Another cut of 25 cents in mideontinental crude oil was announced Wednesday by the Prairie Oil & Gas company bringing the new price down to $1.00 a barrel, the lowest since 1916. The new price, according to oil men, means that practically all operations will cease and that small wells must be closed down.

AT THE RIVOLI

The vital servant problem in its most acute form is but one of the questions which confront Douglas MacLean and which he successfully solves in his latest Paramount starring vehicle, "The Rookie's Return," produced by Thomas H. Ince which will be presented at the Rivoli theater today.

In the role of the young soldier who returns to find himself heir to his deceased aunt's millions, and the cares attached to them, Mr. MacLean is afforded innumerable clever comedy situations which he handles with the inimitable humor that made his work in "Twenty-three and a Half Hour's Leave" so distinctive.

One hundred thousand dollars of fun is being offered by the Rivoli theater, where "The Sportsman," a new Larry Semon comedy, will be shown today, Friday and Saturday. Under the contract entered into by Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph, and the comedy kind, $3,500,000 is to be spent in three years on Larry Semon comedies, produced at a rate of twelve a year. The average cost, therefore, is $100,000 for each Larry Semon comedy.

MADE-IN-LA CROSSE COMEDY

The made-in-La Crosse comedy photoplay, "Can You Beat It?" played by a local cast and enacted at various places about the city familiar to everybody, will be the featured picture at the Casino today and tomorrow. Besides this picture Pearl White in "The White Moll," a crook play, and Fox News will be on the program.

"GIRL WITH JAZZ HEART"

The shimmy has come into its own at last, in the movies. After winning over most of the rest of American institutions, it has won the screen, as can be seen in the new Goldwyn picture, "The Girl with the Jazz Heart," with Madge Kennedy at the Strand today. To give realism to the cabaret scene which is the big effect of the picture, the services of Gilda Gray were secured. Miss Gray became famous in "The Galeties of 1919," when she exhibited her shimmying powers to the public, and in "The Girl With the Jazz Heart," she maintains her prestige.

"HEARTS O' THE RANGE"

Numbered among the younger flight of leading men, is Clinton Hodder, leading man of "Hearts o' the Range," the special attraction at the Riviera today. Mr. Hodder is nothing if not a "comer." He has been in motion pictures for a year and in that short time has lifted himself from humble extra to well-paid lead. He is big and broad and husky, an ideal type for the role of the handsome ranch foreman he is called upon to play in this picture. Yet strangely enough this is the first occasion in which he has been starred in a western story. Hitherto he has appeared in the garments of a closer civilization than that of the west, and in roles that did not give him a chance to get his legs across a horse and go riding after a mob of cattle as he does in "Hearts o' the Range." Mr. Hodder is an actor worth watching, and a few months should see his name on the posters as large as that of the title—a fact which signifies absolute and undeniable stardom.

GIANTS WIN LONG TILT FROM CUBS

Sensational Twelve Inning Battle Goes to New York With Four Runs in Last Frame

OESCHGER'S HURLING WINS FOR BRAVES, 3-0

Reds Outbatted But Win Game from Phillies, 4 to 1

CHICAGO—New York on Wednesday defeated Chicago 6 to 2 in twelve innings of the hardest fought baseball seen here this season. Vaughn, pitching in his best form of the year, weakened in the twelfth and the Giants bunched five hits, two of them doubles, which with a base on balls, clinched the game.

Chicago jumped into the lead when Flack hit the first ball pitched for a home run and then the locals added another by bunching hits off Benton. Barnes replaced Benton, who had given way to a pinch hitter in the second and the game resorted into a pitching duel until the ninth when Chicago's defense broke, errors by Hollocher and Killefer enabling the Giants to tie the score.

Sallee went to the mound for the easterners and would have been beaten in the eleventh, except for poor base running and some remarkable fielding by King, Frisch and Smith. Twombly went in to run for Killefer, and was slow starting when Flack doubled to right center, the ball was felded quickly to the plate and Twombly was out by a narrow margin.

NEWBURG MIDGETS BEAT INDEPENDENTS BY SCORE OF 7 TO 5

Steady hurling of Johnson enabled the Newburg Midgets to win over the Independents Tuesday afternoon by a score of 7 to 5.

The Midget hurler was credited with nine strikeouts and allowing one base on balls, while Bakalan, on the mound for the Independents, also pitched good ball, striking out seven men and allowing two passes. Johnson received good support at all times.

HUTCHINSON IS WINNER IN PRO MEET AT LONDON

LONDON—Jock Hutchinson, the Chicago pro, won the professional tournament over the Kinghorn Fife links Wednesday afternoon. Hutchinson's aggregate score for the two days of play at 36 holes was 158, while his nearest competitor turned in 151.

Walter Hagen of Detroit, the only other American entered, dropped out during Thursday's play.

Hutchinson's score for the first day was 74, while Hagen was unable to do better than 81. The players included the Australasian champion, J. K. Kirkwood.

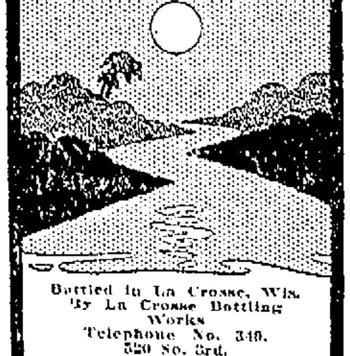

Hutchinson Thursday made the round in 64. He went out in 33 and come home in 31. He ran down long puts on several holes. His mashie play was perfect.

JACK MUNROE UNABLE TO DEFEND HIMSELF AGAINST MIGHTY JAMES JEFFRIES

Sandwiched in between those two famous examples of lopsidedness—the David-Goliath and Dempsey-Willard encounters—was another short and uneven battle in which James J. Jeffries whipped Jack Munroe, Munroe aspired to become heavyweight champion in 1904, but when he was pitted against Jeffries the aspiration appeared to be his strongest claim to a chance at the honor.

Early in the second round the referee thought Munroe had learned his lesson and held up Jeffries' palm.

The fighters met in San Francisco on August 26. Munroe defended himself for a few seconds by raising his gloves above his head. He made several rushes but they fell short of their objective. Jeffries then knocked him down for six counts.

Rising, Munroe's stomach collided with a left-hand punch and again he went down, remaining there for seven counts. As soon as he got up, Jeffries toppled him over a third time. Munroe settled on his haunches, his head wobbly, but arose before the last count. He clinched and the bell saved him.

The second round had no sooner opened than he fell once more with a new sore spot. Even then he could not break himself of the habit of coming back for more. This time Jeffries stabbed his left into Munroe's weary ribs, and the challenger draped himself over the champion's arm. Then the referee called a halt.

JACK KEARNS AND EDGREN CONFER ON BIG TITLE FIGHT

Discussion is Not Revealed But Mention is Likely Made of Referee

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. — Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, Wednesday had a conference with Robert Edgren, who has been mentioned as the ultimate selection as referee at Jersey City, July 2, and who, under the articles of agreement for the Dempsey-Carpentier contest, is the sole arbiter of all disputes likely to come up before the match. What Kearns and Edgren discussed was not revealed, but it is known that Kearns is opposed to the selection of a New Jersey referee for the match.

Kearns favors the selection of James F. Dougherty of Philadelphia, who has refereed two contests in which Dempsey participated.

The state boxing commission meets in Jersey City tomorrow to name the third man in the ring.

FORMULATE PLANS FOR ORGANIZATION OF CUE ASSOCIATION

NEW YORK—Plans for the formation of a National Billiard association were adopted tentatively on Wednesday at the concluding session of a two day meeting of representatives of professional and amateur players, manufacturers and others interested in the game. Formal organization is planned at a meeting to be held in Detroit during the week of July 3.

A governing board of seven members will consist of a representative each for the amateurs, professionals, manufacturers, billiard room owners, state associations, clubs and the press.

The association proposes to supervise the sport in this country and take charge of the national state and local championship tournaments. It was stated that ten state associations in the process of formation will bring the total number to twenty-eight.

CALEDONIA OFFERS HARDEST GAME OF SEASON TONIGHT

Fans in the city are of an undivided opinion that the opposition in the twilight baseball game which starts at 6:45 daylight saving time at Copeland park tonight is among the strongest to be found in this section of the country.

The Caledonia aggregation, which meets the Nelson clothing company baseball team here tonight, will start the game with a record of six consecutive victories, numbering among those, the Union Giants, who twice defeated the local team.

Jaeger, hurler for the Gophers, needs no introduction to those who witnessed the defeat of the La Crosse team against him three weeks ago. He is a former moundsman of the Chicago Cubs.

It was announced by the Nelson management that "Red" Hix, latest and up-to-the-minute addition to the north side team, will pitch for the locals tonight.

THOMSON GOES TO LOS

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Earl Thomson, holder of the high hurdle world's record, will race in the national championships here July 1, 2 and 3, flying the colors of the Los Angeles Athletic club.

Ostrich eggs usually weigh about five pounds.

$10,000 WAGERED ON JACK AS 4-1 FAVORITE IN TILT

NEW YORK.—Scarcity of real money to back Carpentier's chances to win the world championship July 2 have hoisted the Wall street odds on Dempsey to 4 to 1, at which odds $10,000 was placed.

The Dempsey money was put up by a group of Chicago men, who at first attempted to place $25,000 at 3 to 1, but were unable to find takers for all of their money even at the longer odds.

W. L. Darnell, who laid the westerners' money, also announced that he had $25,000 to bet the champion will knock Carpentier out, at odds of 11 to 5 instead of 2 to 1, as heretofore.

Daylight saving was first adopted in America in Cleveland in the spring of 1914.

Alexa Stirling Wins 4th Round In Open Golf

FONTAINEBLEAU, France.—By The Associated Press.—Miss Alexa Stirling of Atlanta, defeated Mrs. Thurston Wright of Pittsburgh in the fourth round of the women's French open golf championship tournament here this morning, the score being 8 up and 6 to play.

Miss Stirling's medal score for the 12 holes played in the match is 52.

America suffered a reverse in the other match played today when Miss Joyce Wethered of England defeated Miss Lucy Hanchett of San Francisco, 8 up and seven to play.

Earle Neale is a good ball player—conscious or unconscious. The other day he bumped into a wall chasing a fly, knocked himself cold but held the ball.

THE NEW LIGHT-SIX

NOW $1335!

This new price is possible because it includes but one manufacturing profit on castings, forgings, stampings, motor, axles, transmission, frame, body, top, etc.—because amount of overhead expenses included in this new low price is very small—because excess weight is eliminated without sacrifice of durability or quality. The shipping weight of the car, 2500 pounds, is distributed equally over the four wheels.

In operating this car you receive the benefit of the economic advantages arising from its superb design, skillful manufacture, excess factors of safety and high quality, because —it will go from 12,000 to 15,000 miles on the standard 32x4 cord tires.

—it will go from 18 to 22 miles on a gallon of gasoline.
—it will render from 8 to 10 years of satisfactory service.

MARKET IN REACTION

Early Advance Cancelled in Trading of First Hour; Specialties Lead Decline

NEW YORK—The greater part of the early advance in stock exchange Thursday was cancelled within the first hour, extreme heaviness being shown by various specialties, particularly sugars and tobaccos. Steels, equipments, shippings and chemicals also gave way. American Sugar, American Tobacco, Sumatra, Bethlehem and Crucible Steels, Pullman, Atlantic Gulf, Mercantile Marine preferred and Industrial Alcohol fell one to four points. Just before noon Mexican Petroleum became the center of another severe drive, selling down to 113 or a further reaction of four pionts. Studebaker and American Woolen were also weak. Call money opened at 5½ per cent.

Stocks rallied briskly at the active opening of the trading, shorts covering on favorable developments announced after the close of Wednesday's session. These included the lower commercial discount rate fixed by the local federal reserve bank and declaration of the regular Northern Pacific division. Northern Pacific soon gained two points, while Great Northern, Louisville and Nashville, Atlantic Coast Line, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio and Texas and Pacific advanced one to two and one-half points. Mexican Petroleum, Wednesday's weakest feature, made an initial rally of three points. Pan-American Petroleum rose two and a half, the "B" stock rising 3½. Baldwin Locomotive and American Sugar were among the other strong issues.

Mexican Petroleum's further decline to 103, in the final hour, occasioned additional reaction in other oils, also equipments and specialties. The close was weak.

Bullish Crop Reports Send Prices Sharply Upward

CHICAGO, Ill.—Bullish crop reports led to sharp upturns Thursday in the price of wheat. According to a leading expert the prevailing conditions in South Dakota were such as would be likely to make the black rust plague develop. Another well known authority reported that the wheat crop in Ohio and Indiana showed huge areas that had suffered permanent injury. Demand was also promoted by a decided advance in foreign exchange. Opening prices, which varied from ¾ to 1½c lower with July $1.30¾ to $1.31½ and September $1.21½ to $1.22 were followed by a rapid rise much above Wednesday's finish.

Reports of black rust in Minnesota counted later as an additional bullish factor, but subsequent heavy selling on the part of longs caused a sharp break in prices. The close was weak ½ to 4¾c net lower, with July $1.28 to ¼ and September $1.21½ to ¾.

Corn ascended with wheat. After opening unchanged to ⅛c lower including September 62⅝ to ¾c, the market scored a mat advance all around.

Export business tended later to check declines. The close was firm, ⅜ to 1c net advance September 63⅜ to ½c.

Oats were stronger in line with other cereals, starting ⅛c off to ⅛c up September 38⅝ to ⅞ and then continuing to harden.

Provisions sympathized with grain despite lower hog prices.

Revealing Their Worth

The true historical genius, to our thinking, is that which can see the nobler meaning of events that are near him, as the true poet is he who detects the divine in the casual and we somewhat suspect the depth of his insight into the past, who can not recognize the godlike of today under that disguise in which it always visits us — Lowell.

BECK INTRODUCES FILLED MILK BILL IN THE LOWER HOUSE

Seventh District Congressman Proposes Measure Patterned After Wisconsin Bill

LITTLE CHANCE OF ACTION ON THE MEASURE THIS SESSION

Reapportionment Matter Held up by Congress for Time

BY BETTY PRUETT FARRINGTON

WASHINGTON, D. C.—After receiving the special committee on reapportionment of the state legislature, six different plans for reapportioning the representation of the state in congress, the Wisconsin delegation in the house advised the committee it could express no preference in the matter until action was taken by congress. The delegation considered the matter at a meeting called by Representative James A. Frear of Hudson, chairman.

For the most part there were parts of all of the plans which did not meet with the full approval of all members of the delegation. They arrived at a unanimous decision, however, that it would be useless to attempt to advise the state legislature's committee on the question until congress had definitely come to a decision.

The delegation wired the committee to that effect and subsequently learned the committee had dropped the matter for the time being. There was no little satisfaction on this account among a good many members of the delegation. The plans for reapportionment submitted promised to open up several kinds of problems to some of them.

As previously stated in these reports, Representative John M. Nelson of Madison has learned upon polling the house that the majority are in favor of retaining the membership of the lower body of congress at the present time.

Beck Offers Bill

To abolish the "filled milk" business from Wisconsin and from other states where the dairy industry thrives, legislation has been proposed by both Representative Joseph D. Beck of Virooqua and Representative Edward Voigt of Sheboygan. The house committee on agriculture, according to Mr. Voigt, provides for an amendment to the pure food laws to prohibit the sale, manufacture and transportation of "filled milk." The measure proposed by Mr. Beck, modeled after "filled cheese" laws would tax out of existence the "filled milk" business. It would place heavy taxes on both the manufacturer and retailer of the product.

On that account, the Beck bill was referred to the house ways and means committee where consideration in this session of congress would be impossible in the face of the revision of the tariff and revenue laws now under way. Mr. Beck said he would attempt to have the measure referred to the agricultural committee where, in his opinion, it should go.

"Filled milk is a product sold quite widely throughout the state," Beck said, "and is frequently represented as good as milk. It is made at a very low cost and can consequently be sold for very little. But it has been pointed out that this product in which an oil is substituted for butter fat, contains none of the essential food elements of real milk. It is deceptive to the people and unfair to the farmer, and should not be manufactured."

Mr. Voigt said attempts are being made to bring before the agricultural committee on Monday Dr. E. V. McCollum of Johns Hopkins university. McCollum, now recognizes as one of the greatest authorities on nutrition, did his first important work in the agricultural college of the University of Wisconsin. There he began a study of nutrition with rats, the results of which attracted nation-wide attention.

J. Q. Emery of Madison, state food and dairy commissioner, as well as food experts of New York state, may also appear on the Voigt bill on Monday.

Alfred Rogers of Madison, national committeeman from Wisconsin, was represented at the national committee in Washington this week by Representative Henry Allen Cooper of Racine. Frear Given Degree Representative James L. Frear of Hudson was given the degree of LL. D. (Doctor of Laws) by the National University at the commencement exercises this week. Several other members of congress also received like honors.

With one exception, Mr. Frear was the oldest alumnus of the university at the commencement exercises. He graduated in 1883, taking a course in law. Subsequently Mr. Frear went back to Wisconsin where he entered upon the political career which brought him to the house of representatives.

The marriage of Miss Mary La Follette, youngest daughter of Senator and Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, to Mr. Ralph Gunn Sucher of Peoria, Ill., will take place at the home of the bride's parents next Wednesday. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Ulysses G. B. Grant of Washington, and will be attended by the family and a small circle of immediate friends.

Following their marriage the couple will make their home in Washington where Mr. Sucher will engage in newspaper work. Miss La Follette has recently been studying art in New York. She is the youngest of the senator's family of four.

Both Miss La Follette and Mr. Sucher have a wide circle of friends in Madison where Mr. Sucher met Miss La Follette while attending the University of Wisconsin. He graduated from the university in the class of 1918, and after serving in the army during the war, came to Washington to resume his study of law.

Farmers Ask Relief

Urgent appeals from the farmers of the country for legislative action to relieve their present plight results in two important steps toward that end in congress. The house adopted the resolution offered by Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, and already adopted by the senate, to create a joint congressional commission of ten to investigate the condition of the agricultural industry of the country in view of ascertaining what legislative measures, if any, can be enacted by congress for the benefit of the farmers. Following nomination of members of the commission, the work of the investigation may begin.

Of at least equal importance was the action of the house banking and currency committee in reporting favorably the bill offered by Representative Adolphus P. Nelson of Grantsburg, raising the limit of loans to federal land banks under the federal farm loan act from $6,000,000 to $50,000,000.

"We can weave the information together at comparatively small expense and give congress authentic facts concerning all conditions," Senator Lenroot said regarding the investigation, "affecting agriculture and the causes for their special burdens. We can then determine what can be done in the power of congress and frame remedial legislation accordingly.

"One of the chief things we hope to do is to fix the responsibility for profiteering. To do this, we will trace agricultural products from the producer to the consumer. If somebody along the line is getting more than his share the American public ought to know it."

In his committee report on the amendment to the farm loan act, Mr. Nelson said it was the view of the farm loan board, concurred in by the secretary of the treasury, that the initial capital of banks, $9,000,000 was "entirely inadequate to enable a continuity of their loaning operations" and "the amount of $8,000,000, which may now be deposited is insufficient to cure this fundamental defect in the original act."

"The smallness of the capital of the banks at this time, $24,450,280, of which the government owns $6,700,675, makes the continuous functioning of the banks in their loaning operations from time to time doubtful," the report states, "in fact impossible without incurring dangerous commitments."

Pointing out it is doubtful that the investing public would consume another issue of farm loan bonds, since the treasury department only in April disposed of an issue aggregating $40,000,000, Mr. Nelson states without the provision in the bill reported the active loaning operations of the federal land banks would cease.

"In the awful distressed condition of agriculture," he states, "with foreclosures threatened in every section of the country, with the unconscionable money lender reaping a harvest in maximum rates and exorbitant commissions, and with the large number of factories and industrial centers stagnant because of the inability of the farmers to purchase their products, it would seem the part of wisdom to take such action as will correct a fundamental defect in the organic act, not only for the purpose of such correction, but to meet in some measure an emergency in a basic industry of our country."

* * * *

Senator La Follette formally presented to the senate memorials from the state legislature of Wisconsin favoring the recognition of the Irish republic, favoring retention of the excess profits tax and surtax, and urging legislation authorizing construction of a bridge across the Mississippi river between Prairie du Chien in Wisconsin and Marquette and McGregor in Iowa.

* * * *

In two roll calls, Senator Lenroot supported an amendment to the army appropriation bill offered by the committee on military affairs of which he is a member to increase the appropriation for enlisted men from $72,678,659 to $83,000,000. Senator La Follette both times voted against the increase. By the first vote, taken in the senate "committee of the whole," the amendment was adopted, 34 voting aye, 30 nay, and 32 not voting. By the second and final vote, taken in the senate, the amendment was defeated, 32 voting aye, 36 nay, and 28 not voting.

The contention of Senator Wadsworth of New York, chairman of the military affairs committee, was that the appropriation adopted by the house would provide for an army of only 120,000, although the understanding of the house was it would provide for 150,000. The increase proposed by the senate, he said, would provide an army of 168,000.

Expenditures for the army for the coming fiscal year, Senator Lenroot said, would be reduced below what they were for the present year by the bill.

"General Nelson A. Miles, for many years the head of the army of the United States, a man whose military training is unexcelled," Senator La Follette said, "whose military experience is broader than that of any other recognized military authority in the country, I am informed has always held the opinion that the standing army of this government ought never to exceed 1,000 men for every 1,000,000 of our population. In my view, Mr. President, it would be no calamity if the standing army of this government were reduced at the end of a year to 100,000 men."

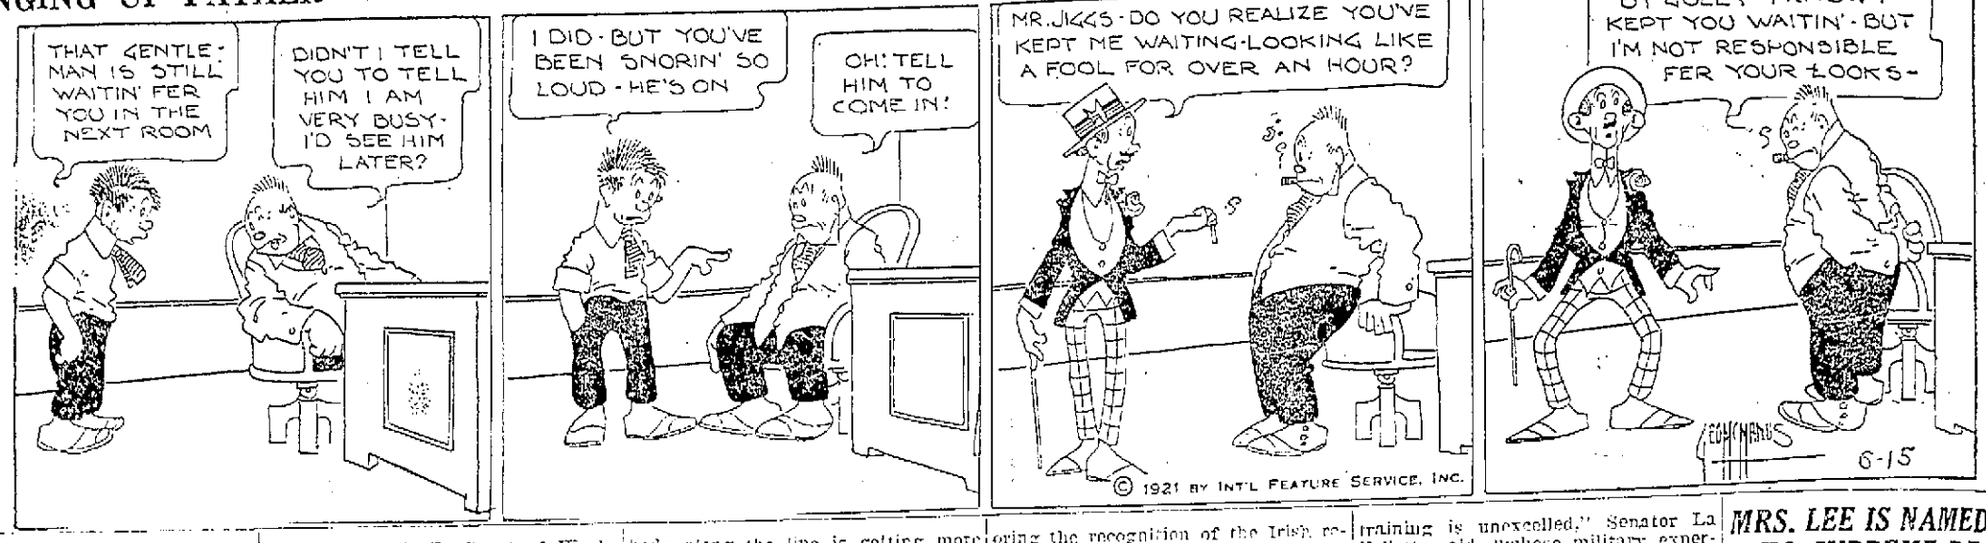

The senator argued that the size of the army proposed was unjustified in light of the past policy of the United States, the present condition of the world, and the increased burden it would place on the taxpayer.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The treasury's offering of $500,000,000 of 3-year notes and 1-year certificates brought subscriptions of more than $750,000,000, Secretary Mellon announced.
